if you're going to make a hybrid oc don't make it look like only one of their tribes if your hybrid oc only looks like one tribe and looks nothing like the other please make it just the tribe it looks like and not a hybrid of 2 tribes
"but my oc needs the powers of 2 tribes!"
they probably don't, and if they do- well, there's other ways to do it. have it be an animus enchantment or something

I guess it makes sense for them to have some sort of resemblance to the other tribe, but it doesn't have to be big

After all we have cannon examples of hybrids that look more like one tribe than the other.

Take Sunny for example, if you look at her on the cover of the brightest night, she looks like a Sandwing, with only a few strange differences (e.g. no tail barb, bright goldish coloured scales instead of a pale or white colour), it makes sense why everyone confused her for a Sandwing that hatched wrong.

Even Darkstalker looks more like a Nightwing than an Icewing

And also, it's the other person's OC, as long as they don't break the rules of the WoF universe (or the rules of the roleplay if they are using it for a roleplay) when creating it I think it's pretty much fine

Sunny actually has more of a NightWing build than SandWing.

@cormorant: i meant more of people's ocs who look only like one tribe, i'm fine with hybrids having dominant tribes as long as they have at least some resemblance to their sub tribe

@Wild- True, like all the canon characters. Sunny has traits from both tribes (like the head shape if you've seen the reference on the Wiki) but remember she also has a touch of IceWing in her, too. Wasn't she related to Darkstalker? She doesn't portray that at all really.

sunny's icewing blood is 2000 years old, it's no longer a relevant part of the gene pool
